a comprehensive introduction to public policy and the policy cycle the fully revised second edition of this popular textbook offers a practical guide to the topic while remaining underpinned by cutting edge research bringing together analysis of classic works alongside the most recent developments in the field this book is guided by the following three crucial questions what is public policy who participates in making and putting public policy in practice as well as in assessing its success and when and how does public policy change over time in answering these questions the book covers everything from the central institutions and actors of policy making to implementation evaluation and governance drawing on examples from across the world the new edition expands on themes that were previously covered only marginally including the underexplored connection between public policy and political economy as well as placing more emphasis on climate change and practical advice on doing policy analysis for undergraduate or postgraduate students studying on courses focussed on public policy or the policy cycle or process this textbook is the essential guide to the subject the book is also suited for those studying public policy in the context of politics or public management and administration new to this edition a revised conclusion containing guidance on how to do policy analysis extended discussion of climate policy and politics consideration of the effects of brexit the rise of populism and the impact of the loss of faith in globalization for international organizations more on policy process theories comparative public policy the increasingly interdisciplinary nature of public policy studies and new methodologies such as the evaluation of policy measures by means of social media data this ground breaking study offers a new paradigm for understanding the beliefs and religions of the goths burgundians sueves franks and lombards as they converted from paganism to christianity between c 350 and c 700 ce combining history and theology with approaches drawn from the cognitive science of religion belief and religion in barbarian europe uses both written and archaeological evidence to challenge many older ideas beginning with a re examination of our knowledge about the deities and rituals of their original religions it goes on to question the assumption that the germanic peoples were merely passive recipients of christian doctrine arguing that so called arianism was first developed as an entry level christianity for the goths focusing on individual ethnic groupings in turn it presents a fresh view of the relationship between religion and politics as their rulers attempted to opt for catholicism in place of familiar debates about post conversion pagan survivals contemporary texts and legislation are analysed to create an innovative cognitive perspective on the ways in which the church endeavoured to bring the christian god into people s thoughts and actions the work also includes a survey of a wide range of written and archaeological evidence contrasting traditional conceptions of death afterlife and funerary ritual with christian doctrine and practice in these areas and exploring some of the techniques developed by the church for assuaging popular anxieties about christian burial and the christian afterlife this volume seeks to describe and explain how european countries have been resolving political issues that involve conflicts of fundamental values in recent years the debate on the future institutional shape of the european union has centred on the constitutional treaty and the lisbon treaty as its less ambitious but possibly equally abortive successor the debate has thus neglected the emergence of a wide variety of new and multi level forms of governing the present volume takes stock of these debates and asks critical questions about policy conflicts and the effectiveness and legitimacy of these forms of governance under what conditions can they stand up to the high expectations that are put in them by their supporters the volume offers reflections on the notion of network governance multi level governance and the difficult issue of democratic accountability as well as empirical case studies from the structural funds area as well as from environmental policy broadly conceived
